If that is to attained this matter should be treated on its merits, without any personal feeling or bitterness and without entering on questions of purely party contro

EMPIRE IN DANGER.

The late colonial secretary alluded to the recent visit he paid to Venice, when he found the Campanile, which had stood for centuries and whice, when he previously visited Venice, seemed as permanent as the city itself, now a mass of ruins. He continued:

"I do not anticipate such a fate for the present empire, but I may that I see signs of decay, cracks and crevious showing that the foundations are not broad and deep enough to sustain it Am I wrong to warn you? Is it not strange and inconsistent that the same people who indicted the government for its unpreparedness in the South African war should now denounce me in language equally extravagant because which Mr. Chamberlain has raised or the there have always been men who do not want to appear before you?"

Adducing statistics Mr. Chamberlain contrasted the moderate increase of The per cent in the export trade of Great Britain and the increase of 30 per cent in her population since 1822, with the enormous increase of trade in the United growing population with its trade practically stagnant for thirty years. He pro-
